EDUCATION ALLIANCE for AMATEUR RADIO

The Education Alliance for Amateur Radio (EAAR) promotes Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math education through youth and community education and collaboration with other Amateur Radio organizations.

EAAR GOALS

1. Promote STEM as a resource for local communities by providing funding, equipment and educational services.
2. Promote Amateur Radio by educating the community through interactive demonstrations.
3. Collaborate with other Amateur Radio organizations and local emergency management groups to advance education in Amateur Radio.

WHAT WE CAN DO FOR YOU

EAAR is a 501(c3) non-profit. The services we provide are paid for by grants and the generous donations from supporters, like you.

1. If you are a non-profit youth organization, we can provide HAM Radio training.
2. If you are a Scouting organization, we teach the following merit badges:
  - a. Radio
  - b. Electronics
  - c. Electricity
3. Other groups may schedule our trainings for a small donation or honorarium.
4. Invite us to participate at your community event.

RADIO MERIT BADGE & HAM CRAM

We have a special program for Scouts BSA, US Girl Scouts, 4-H, Big Brothers & Sisters, and other youth groups to help talented young men & women become licensed Amateur Radio Operators.

The program begins with Scouts earning the Radio Merit Badge. We then provide a series of short classes and share study guides, personal tips, mnemonics, and other learning aids to ensure you can pass the FCC exam. On the final day, the exam is offered so you can immediately put your new knowledge to use. And here is some exciting news: Morse Code is NO longer required to earn your license. We offer adult HAM Cram classes, too. Contact us for complete details.

AFFILIATE GROUP

The Global Troop Resource is an awesome Scout-related organization. We encourage you to go visit their YouTube channel and website at www.TroopResource.org.
